INTERNATIONAL

WOMEN'S DAY

International Women's Day is a holiday that honors women and promotes women's rights. It takes place every year on March 8. International Women's Day dates back to 1911, when many women were fighting for the right to vote. The United Nations (UN) began sponsoring the day in 1975.

People around the world celebrate International Women's Day. In some places, women receive flowers or other gifts. Groups in many countries arrange talks, performances, and other activities. Each year the UN helps to organize events related to a specific women's rights issue—for example, improving education or ending violence against women.

Most countries do not officially recognize International Women's Day. However, some countries—such as Cuba, China, Eritrea, Russia, and Uganda—have made it a public holiday. South Africa celebrates its own public holiday, National Women's Day, on August 9 every year. It honors a demonstration by about 20,000 South African women on August 9, 1956. The women were protesting a law made by the white-run apartheid government.

World Down Syndrome Day is observed every year on 21st March.

Down syndrome is a naturally occurring chromosomal arrangement in human which results in variable effects on learning styles, physical characteristics or health. The General Assembly has declared 21st March in December 2011 as World Down Syndrome Day.

World Earth Day

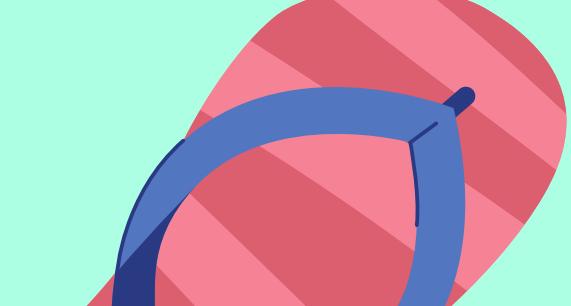

World Earth Day is celebrated every year on April 22 to show support for environmental conservation. It was first celebrated on April 22, 1970. The first Earth Day was focused on the United States. In 1990, Denis Hayes, the original national coordinator in 1970, took it international and organized events in 141 nations. The unofficial Earth Day Flag created by John McConnell includes The Blue Marble photograph taken by the crew of Apollo 17.
